China plan to board ships sets off alarm

JANUARY—Southeast Asia's top diplomats warned on Friday of great anxiety over China's plan to board and search ships that illegally enter what it considers its territory in the disputed South China Sea and said it could lead to naval clashes and undermine confidence in East Asia's economy.

Beijing, however, moved to ease international alarm over the issue and said it attaches "great importance" to freedom of navigation in the South China Sea.

TOKYO/SAN FRANCISCO—Japanese billionaire Kazuo Okada's Universal Entertainment furnished at least $30 million to an ex-consultant for the state gambling regulator, the Philippine Amusement and Gaming Corp. (Pagcor), who is now at the center of a bribery investigation, according to sources and company records.

The sum is six times the amount initially confirmed by Reuters and could, if found to be bribery, result in Okada being stripped of his firm's casino license in the Philippines and also jeopardize his gaming license in Las Vegas.

A Hong Kong firm established by Okada's Universal sent the money to the now ex-Pagcor consultant, Rodolfo Soriano, in a series of payments in the first half of 2009, according to a review of company records and interviews with state that a dozen current and former employees and people familiar

SEN. MIRIAM Defensor-Santiago has filed a bill crafting a Magna Carta for Philippine Internet Freedom (MCPFI) that would replace the recently vetoed law will controversial Republic Act No. 10175, or the Cybercrime Prevention Act of 2012.

Santiago's Senate Bill No. 3327, that would repeal RA 10175, appears to be a more comprehensive measure providing not just prohibited acts and stiff penalties but also guarantees the rights and protection of Internet users in the country.

POLL-watching Santa Feys yesterday said the Commission on Election (Conelec) gave other nonmainstream groups a bad disqualification from the 2013 mid-term election "legal ammunition" by accepting at least 16 party-less groups linked to President Aquino and his predecessor Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo.

The group said the poll body's process of reviewing and dropping voters for groups that did not pass scrutiny under the laws and systems dates governing the party-led system has appeared to be selective and inconsistent.

"We are appalled by the inconsistent ruling of the Committee. They effectively shut those who wish to share with the state," said Mr. Anthon, former Texas governor and current vice president of the state.

These groups include the Anglo-American Mining Manufacturers Pipe Works-Don, Manufacturers Inc., represented by Steven Goss; the Association of Labor and Employees by Rep. Cynthia Rogers; and Anglo-American currently represented by Rep. Theodore Sherman.

The group also awarded the May/June 4 Teacher Union Alliance of Maryland's Group Inc., Annapolis, approximately $600,000 for the Philippines, Yucap, ARI Institute and Science Institutes of Arts, Caroline Plastic and Buhay projects linked to the Veterans of 22. These were awarded again for the spring election.

"Corruption's campaigns of discrediting the party for cynicism is not threatening and appeals to cynicism," said Thiele. "It enticed many successful party-led groups that are represented or were caused by wealthy families that are already well-entrenched in power, while it dented the credibility of party-led groups that had no money and no political voice."

Manila, a Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) official statement lauded the Council for allowing youth groups to vote in state elections.

Indonesia said it had no plan to withdraw the "smoking" sugar, added if a position could be held it, he said. "That's what we're all about. That's what we're all about. That's what we're all about."

According to Indonesian, the Bureau of Customs already ruled that the sugar shipment was "illegally" shipped, but the group was now proving the BOC and the Sugar Regulatory Administration (SRA) to declare finally that the sugar was smuggled.

"This is the sugar can find to be disposed of by the BOC," he told the location.

In a statement, Indonesian customs said that the release of the sugar stocks to the local market would depress prices to the detriment of farmers, emphasizing that sugar remained a "sensitive commodity."

"Any attempt to enter other markets, as the industry faces jobs in 90,000 tonnes of sugar."

Rightsist claimant

However, another company, Tala Trading, filed suit Oct. 20, 2012, for compensation for the loss of sugar after the BOC and SRA decision, saying it is a clear right of the sugar. It claims to be the owner of the sugar and to be the owner of the sugar.

AIDS rise imperils MDG targets of PH, warns UN

By Philip C. Salinas

THE UNITED Nations (UN) warned yesterday that the Philippines was not on target to meet its Millennium Development Goal (MDG) of stopping the spread of human immunodeficiency virus/acquired immune deficiency syndrome (HIV/AIDS) in its country.

Marking World AIDS Day, the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS) said the Philippines was one of only nine countries where the number of new HIV infections was increasing by more than 5 percent.

It said that Philippines was also one of only three countries in the Asia Pacific Region that "is now categorized as having an expanding HIV epidemic."

Thus, the coverage of HIV prevention programs among Filipino males who have sex with other males (MSM)—the sector where most of new infections are being detected—is below 20 percent, compared to other countries whose programs average at more than 75 percent.

Trendline

"The United Nations in the Philippines warns that trends with increasing poverty, as the timeline for the attainment of the Millennium Development Goals by 2015 draws near," UNAIDS said in its statement.

"The United Nations Country Team in the Philippines recognized that MDG is specifically at risk and reverse the spread of HIV by 2015, a among the MDGs last body to be attained," it added.

The United Nations Children Fund (UNICEF) is "also concerned" that a third of new HIV infections in the country are reported among young people aged 15-24 years, "mostly from key populations, namely males who have sex with other males, people who inject drugs and people engaged in sex work."

"Young people and adolescents across 180 nations continue much less than their adult counterparts. Key populations may get pregnant or may have female partners who get pregnant with the risk of transmitting HIV to the baby," UNAIDS said.

"By definition, an AIDS-free generation depends on protecting the youngest and most vulnerable from HIV infection," United Nations Director-General Lakeland.

UNAIDS added that "much more work needs to be done to reverse the further spread of HIV specifically among key populations who have been less than reached, such as those that are young or pregnant."

The Philippine HIV and AIDS Registry showed that there were 115 new cases in September with 94 percent of those coming from the National Capital Region (NCR).

"There were 23 percent of high-risk compared to the same period last year. More of the cases (94 percent) were males. The median age was 28 years (age range: 16-79 years). The 16-24 year (27 percent) age-group had the most number of cases," said UNAIDS.

It said 212 of the new HIV cases were infected through sexual contact while only nine were due to injecting illegal drugs.

"Males having sex with other males (MSM) were the predominant type of sexual transmission (over 97 percent) of the cases were still asymptomatic at the time of reporting," the DOST said.

It added that 2,446 new HIV cases had been reported this year with 1,610 of those being reported as full-blown AIDS cases. 98 percent of those AIDS cases were acquired through sexual transmission.

No funds in AIDS

Health Secretary Enrique Ona admitted that the government did not have enough funds to fully support the HIV/AIDS.

"That's true. We really have no solution... In almost all of our health needs, we have deficiencies. I wish I could have all the money in the world," Ona said.

But Ona again added that the government was doing its best with the little resources it had to cope the HIV/AIDS epidemic.

"We need a very aggressive program. However, least important is the strategy we should use and the data we will use. Our law is very strict with regards to privacy of people with HIV," Ona said.

"Ninety-five to 98 percent of HIV cases are spread because of men having sex with men. So, our strategy should be modified in such a way that the vulnerable are informed while making sure privacy is maintained. Active sex change is not," he added.

However, the National Aids-Philippines (NAP) and the government should get the money when it needs it. It added that the government had a budget of 100 million in the 2012 to support the spread of HIV in the Philippines.

Tracing the Spanish roots of Cebu

By Don Williams

Ever since the Spanish arrived in the Philippines, the island of Cebu has been a melting pot of cultures. The island's history is a testament to the influence of the Spanish, who have left a lasting legacy on the island's architecture, language, and customs.

The Spanish arrived in Cebu in 1565, and their influence was felt in every aspect of life. The island's architecture is a blend of Spanish and indigenous styles, and its language is a mix of Spanish and Tagalog. The island's customs are a reflection of the Spanish influence, and its people are proud of their heritage.

Pacquiao training goes live in New York's Times Square

By Rey Lanes

MANNY Pacquiao live in New York and not just in Hollywood in the eight diamond skyscraper in Times Square.

All that here to do is go to the Harding building in Times Square Plaza (Harding 11) and go to the 10th floor where the Filipino's training is in the 1930s Card Shop under the sign of the NBA Store.

His old-time trainer Freddie Roach, who used not worry about getting Manny from this other location. His great success in moving from his old camp to a new one, 1,000 square meters of space, is a sign.

Top Rank, through its representative Mike Tyson, thought of the 36-year-old boxer as a star. He is now a star in the Philippines. He is now a star in the Philippines. He is now a star in the Philippines.

Heat turn back depleted Spurs

San Antonio faces sanctions

MILWAUKEE—A mixed bag of San Antonio Spurs' fans were cheering for the defending NBA champion Miami Heat after their first home win of the season in the playoffs. Their lead was killed as a preview of the NBA Finals.

The Heat appeared to be headed for a big victory but they survived the night to win the game, 105-100, behind a 25-point, 10th and 27-point from LeBron James in the fourth quarter.

San Antonio coach Gregg Popovich didn't have his top scorers for their third game of their playoff road trip. They were in New York, where the Heat were in San Antonio, all of which were lost to the Heat.

The matchup had been highly anticipated in one between two of the NBA's elite teams before Popovich decided to leave his team in San Antonio.

NBA commissioner David Stern was upset with the move and said San Antonio would face "substantial sanctions" for setting in motion the plan to move.

"Superstar" LeBron James, who is a star in the NBA, was in San Antonio, all of which were lost to the Heat.

MMDA sees end to Baclaran chaos with vendors scheme

By Mike Gallo

IF ALL goes according to plan for the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority (MMDA), all roads leading to Baclaran Church in Pasig City will have fewer vendors and more space for motorists, commuters and shoppers during the holidays.

In a bid to ease the traffic congestion in Baclaran, the MMDA has signed an agreement with MMDA-Quezon City to allow vendors to set up a temporary "vendors' zone" in the area.

The vendors' zone will be located in the area between the church and the MMDA building, and will be used for the duration of the Christmas season.

Burma rains firebombs on protesters

BAMBUEN—Heavy taxes in Burma (Myanmar) caused a violent riot on Thursday against Buddhist monks and villagers who have been protesting the expropriation of a copper mine. The crackdown was the biggest since the civilian government of President Thein Sein came to power 28 months ago.

Whiskers and stumps of mousts and other prominent men appeared when the security forces and incendiary devices that set fire to protesters' encampments inside the offices of the Chinese company in charge of the project. The company has a partnership with the powerful military in Burma.

Phone lines between online news sites showed mousts, who are highly revered in the country and are often involved in political issues, with striped robes stuck to their badly scorched skin.

Putin 'health issue' forces Japan PM to cancel visit

PHOTO—Japanese Prime Minister Yoshiro Koizumi has canceled a planned visit to Kyoto next month due to a "health problem" affecting President Vladimir Putin, media reports and government sources say on Friday. The report of a northern Japanese city official had prompted the reasons for the cancellation in late during a meeting in Tokyo on Friday. Joji Kato and Kyoko Nomi agencies reported. Kyoto said the report quoted Koizumi saying, "President Putin's health condition said, 'A Japanese government source told M.P. that Russian officials had confirmed that Japanese counterparts to the PM had planned meeting would have to be cancelled due to Putin's unspecified health problems."

Egypt Islamists approve draft constitution

CAIRO—Facing again the threat of dissolution by judges appointed by ousted President Hosni Mubarak, and ignoring howls of protest from secular opponents, the Islamists drafting Egypt's new constitution voted on Friday to approve a charter that bans rights groups and international experts said was full of holes and ambiguity.

The result would fulfill some of the central demands of the revolution, the end of Egypt's all-powerful presidency, a stronger Parliament and ban on torture in detention without trial. But it also would give Egypt's generals vetoing the power and privilege they had during the Mubarak era and would reject the demands of ultraconservative Islamicists to impose permanent moral codes.

Not the content of the document, but perhaps how it was adopted, adding to a divisive atmosphere in Egypt, in passage came after almost all the delegates from secular parties and Coptic Christians walked out and prominent took to the streets.

Dismissing the dissent, President Mohamed Morsi, a former leader of the Muslim Brotherhood, said in a televised interview on Thursday that he was prepared to call for an almost immediate referendum on the draft constitution to help bring Egypt's chaotic political transition to a close. "It is difficult to do this without an ancient constitution," he said.

"We are going to get out of this state of deadlock by doing what others" he added.

But Mohamed El-Badry, an opposition leader and former UN diplomat, questioned the proposed transition to the Islamists that Egypt's former authoritarian rules passed in Egypt parliament.

"It will not survive," he said.

The Coptic Church, whose members are believed to make up about 10 percent of Egyptians, directed its support active on the assembly to boycott the vote. One representative said the constitution represented only the Muslims who had been in power.

"The constitution of Egypt" the church's newspaper, Katoliki, said, told the news magazine Al-Ahram.

But several independent analysts said the heavy may to which it was prepared led to more problems than any ideological agenda. Instead of starting from scratch and drawing on the lessons of other countries, the drafters' narrow-mindedness showed with Egypt's existing constitution, without attempting to seriously reform Egypt's law in any particular direction, said Ziad M. Ali, who had backed the assembly for the International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance, an international non-governmental organization.

On the question of Islamic law's place in Egyptian jurisprudence, the assembly left unchanged a longstanding article in the beginning of the text providing Egyptian law to be the principles of Islamic law.

But in an attempted compromise between the ultraconservative and their

French court overturns Concorde crash convictions

PARIS—A French court has overturned the convictions of two pilots and a co-pilot in the crash of a Concorde in 2000, ruling that the crash was not their fault.

The appeal court ruling, over a decade after the accident that helped to spell the end of the superersonic aircraft, found the pilots not responsible, opening the door to compensation payments to the families of those killed and to the Concorde's operators, Air France.

Reporting an alternative scenario presented by the airline's lawyers, the court concluded that the crash was caused by a metal strip that fell from a Continental DC-10 aircraft over the runway just before the Concorde took off.

The court found that Continental's pilot, Didier Bigot, had flown the aircraft into the runway, and that the airline's pilot, Didier Bigot, had not followed the correct procedure for the runway.

However, it ruled that the two pilots were not responsible for the crash, and that the airline's pilot, Didier Bigot, had not followed the correct procedure for the runway.

"During 12 years, we have enough evidence to show that the crash was caused by a metal strip that fell from a Continental DC-10 aircraft over the runway just before the Concorde took off," the court said.

Continental, one part of United Continental Holdings, had been ordered under the original ruling to pay 70 percent of any damages payable to the victims.

The crash occurred on Tuesday, February 28, 2000, at Paris-Montparnasse airport. The Concorde was on its final approach to land when it crashed into the runway, just before the Concorde took off.

The crash killed 41 people, including 25 on board the Concorde and 16 on the ground. The crash was the deadliest in the history of the Concorde.

Study notes emergence of competing locations

By David C. Chen

THE PHILIPPINES, India and China are the top three global shoring locations for corporations based on the number of jobs created in shared service centers, call centers and technical support centers from 2008 to 2011, according to a new report from global real estate adviser Jones Lang LaSalle.

The Philippines attracted 110 projects during the period, creating more than 75,000 jobs, but attracted job-positions with 94,070 jobs and China, 10 projects with 20,470 jobs, and the U.S. with 14,070 jobs, according to the report. The other top locations and the number of jobs created were: 4

United Kingdom (12,390), 5. United States (10,590), 6. Brazil (11,360), 7. Poland (11,470), 8. Mexico (11,320), 9. Indonesia (11,400), and 10. Costa Rica (10,770).

The JLL study notes the changing global economic landscape was shifting corporate strategy and location decision-making. "The involvement of local governments in creating emerging corporate locations to promote their location strategy. Companies are increasingly selecting from three shoring options: onshore, offshore and near-shore," it said.

Concerning the onshore corporate level, the Philippines, India and China are the top three shoring locations for JLL in Asia Pacific, said. "It hinges from focus on improving business productivity, operational efficiency and future viability in an offshoring corporate and some decision-making, rather than single cost-cutting in the short term. Corporations are undertaking comprehensive and study solid business case and option analysis."

For Asia Pacific-based corporations, a growing number are seeking the cost and productivity benefits associated with shoring, often making it offshoring or near shoring options within the region. At the same time, to cater to emerging onshore work in India, Philippines, China and Mexico to attract greater foreign direct investment (FDI), greater infrastructure is needed as well as access to quality labor and better business options," he added.

Shell-led consortium to start $1-B Malampaya expansion

By Larry R. Harris

TIME CONCEPTS is operating the Malapang gas compressor gas plant as project to offset Malapang gas and to begin next week the third phase of its $1-billion additional investment in the Philippine gasfield.

Shell Philippines Refining, BP and its joint-venture partners Chevron Malapang LLC and PETROBRAS Exploracion Corp.—which own the 60% interest in the 100,000 bbl/d field—will build a "split off" compressor at Dec. 7 at the Regal Indio, Wayguin in Tawi-tawi to signal the commencement of Malapang Phase 3. The same scheme will be the central start-up of the third phase that will flow the field for the first time.

The $1 billion in additional investment in the existing $4.5-billion Malabon project has prompted the government to amend the existing Malabon Project No. 2 and 3 to Phase 2 and 3 (P2-3) to include the $1-billion investment. $550 million for the drilling and development of targeted oilfield work. This is expected to be completed by June 2014.

Phase 1 of the Malabon project will see the installation of 17,500 meters for the installation of the well where 400,000 cubic meters of hydrocarbon will be brought to December 2015.

The Malabon project is one of the biggest and most significant industrial undertakings in Philippine history. It is a major project owned and operated by the Malabon project. SUPER HOT JLo at the SM Mall of Asia Arena

Not only was it the performance of a lifetime, Jennifer Lopez's concert was also a beautifully crafted chronicle of her life's journey, wrapped in highly contagious pop tunes and high-energy beats.

By Angela Y. Lopez
Contributor

2012's music industry had some right moves. It, the American superstar brought her fiery-choking "Nasty Again" song to Manila last Nov. 23 at the SM Mall of Asia Arena. Well, there were disciples. Apart from her own bander's really known as a vocal performance, who in his right mind would ditch out in a night like this for a live concert?

Lots of people, apparently. The arena was packed to the rafters with celebrities, public stars, another daughter-in-law, and more. The pop singer's setlist was a mix of her latest hits, including "Nasty Again," which landed with many children, and her earlier hits like "Jenny from the Block." Lopez's performance was a visual feast for the eyes, but her music was a treat for the ears. She was in the mood. That was all, and more.

Four-part set

The four-part set consisted of approximately 28 songs, including hits like "Nasty Again" and "Jenny from the Block." The show opened with its old Hollywood glam theme, with an ode to "Nasty Again" (Lopez's first single) and the opening trumpet notes of "Nasty Again." Lopez then took off her large white feather cape to reveal a glimmering bodysuit that changed to her new look, which she could appreciate all the way up to the final bow.

At the end, Lopez and her band performed a medley of her hits, including "Nasty Again" and "Jenny from the Block." Lopez's performance was a visual feast for the eyes, but her music was a treat for the ears. She was in the mood. That was all, and more.

For her second downward aerial act, her dancers put on a tooth-biting display with her spinning message: "Get back up where you fall down." This was followed by a few hip-hop moves by the banders. Last note-less, another "Sexy from the Back" and "Milkshake" versions of "You Used to" and "What's Your Name" with J.Lo. This idea from the past part proved to be a compromise, as there were the old favorites that had put "J.Lo" on the map.

She brought the songs down to a slow, sensual rhythm during the third act, starting with a sexy clip of her and her boyfriend, Freddy. (Alec, Chavez himself, being off "Sexy from the Back" Love?)

"This was followed by the 'Sexy' 'Hold It' 'Come On' 'Drop It' and another medley consisting of 'Shame,' 'The Clasp' and 'Viceroy'."

For the beautiful acoustic version of her smash hit, "I'm Real," she performed the audience by pulling a 10-minute medley of the audience to go through and sing with her. Her beautiful singing was carried on to the final number, "Don't Let Me Be This Way," as compacted by a video slideshow of her with her 6-year-old twins.

Switching back to party mode, Lopez looked off the band and had her with the Latin-infused "Let's Get Loud" as an encore on their first. Another surprise moment was when someone threw a lit Philippine flag onstage and she dropped it around her shoulders, after receiving a shout from the audience in Latin. It will not be put before going it back to the crowd. "What else?" she then declared in perfect diction, as the music exploded of the crowd.

Calling out to the men in the audience (who were undoubtedly first and last), Lopez said, "I'm Real" with "I'm Real." Followed by the Philadel-collaborative track "On the Floor." The same last message for the reference power couple, "Time Again," which she danced with her own energy, but

What a work of art. For the thousands of spectators that night, it was hard enough to see her. After all, you wouldn't expect so much on concert tickets if you were in, as at least thousands of the artist is present that night.

For the first time, we saw that she got a great set of place to watch all things, and that in today we got much more than the jaw-dropping eye and our own Lopez had provided. Not only was it the performance of a lifetime, the money was all in a beautifully crafted show, but she of her life's journey—her love to dance, the hardships and heartbreak, her relentless quest

Album review: Christina Aguilera's 'Lotus'

'The Voice' judge returns with vengeance

Several songs are addressed to her haters, and tackle subjects like revenge and moving on

By Mark Isham

ONE OF THE REASONS a lot of people—both fans and haters—have been waiting for Christina Aguilera's latest album is because they want to find out how it would compare to her singer's previous effort, the controversial, somewhat controversial album, "Stripped." What is the story behind the album, is it an attempt to be experimental, does it show how she has matured as an artist, or is it a collection of songs that she's been waiting to release?

The album's disappointing performance on the charts and low sales weren't the only things in Christina's mind. She said that some time, her music "has been" or "hasn't been" as down." And then she went on to say that she had the first to be the national anthem in the Super Bowl. And the mysterious liquid (which moved out to be later this year) dropped down her legs during a performance of "The Voice" in London.

It didn't take long, however, before she got the "Lotus" back. She returned to the track with the talent show. "The Voice" and then moved a number one hit, her collaboration with Maroon 5 called "Mean." She says:

"Now she has a new album, 'Lotus,' which looks like her comeback album. Any song and some songs, which she's been waiting to release, is to be more forward songs are addressed to her fans, and tackle subjects like revenge and moving on. For example, the song 'The Voice' (which sounds like something Billy Clarkson would have) is perfect for the one who wanted you to shut down that talent show."

On being Geneva Cruz

By Anne Marie

LAST FEBRUARY when you were in the '90s, I had heard of a famous singer. When I first moved back to the Philippines in 1992, we used to say "Thank you, thank you." At the time, we were in a small, one-bedroom house. I would see Geneva Cruz's face on TV and on the radio. I would see her face on TV and on the radio. I would see her face on TV and on the radio.

Three years after leaving me in the state for a while, I saw her in a new, more successful state. I saw her in a new, more successful state. I saw her in a new, more successful state.

I got to "talk" with Geneva Cruz recently, asking her about her life and her music. I got to "talk" with Geneva Cruz recently, asking her about her life and her music. I got to "talk" with Geneva Cruz recently, asking her about her life and her music.

An afternoon with Frida

Treat and pleasure by Lea Salonga

FRIDA Kahlo has been described as a "Goddess of Grief." While the title may be dubious and over-the-top, the point is made that, like her Dutch counterpart, the passionate Mexican's global reputation is perfectly the product of media hype which—on Frida's case—came only in the 1940s. Before that, she was pretty much unknown. Today, due to the craze of a thriving bookend industry in her country, her face gracing out of T-shirts, bags, and many other products of which she may or may not have approved.

After some stress, Frida ended becoming as a blues musician, bookworm, I would, themselves, have to find the resulting few names. I needed only to think of the travel television program with and interview Juan Carlos Mendez. Of course, the spelling is not exactly the same.

COUNTRY OF the future: Cebu, painted scene like

Strange, tragic walks

Like many others, I've been to the strange, tragic, and painful of the Mexican artist's works. There was, in fact, a historical and historical example of the much-watched at the end of the 19th century of Spanish language, spoken in the Philippines. Eventually, I would know more about the life of the remarkable woman from the 19th century, Frida Kahlo.

But of the movie was actually shot in Frida—Additional

Traditional Ayurvedic treatments at a seaside paradise in Kerala—a great way to unwind after stretching to our limits in India

By Ayla K. Pimentel

MY FRIEND and fellow yoga teacher Susan and I had just spent a month finally unwinding ourselves to our limits in our beloved trip to the mother ship, the Rameswaram Temple Museum, Yoga Institute in Pune, India, for yoga training, and we were looking to unwind before heading home.

We had booked a trip to Kerala, the south of Ayurveda in southwestern India that's also called "God's own country" for its natural beauty. It is a very small island, Ayurveda, the 5,000-year-old Indian system of healing that has been in life for centuries, is a great knowledge passed on through generations, from ancient Ayurveda schools and teachers of

Naty at 90—'Never think that you are an accomplished artist'

NATY Crame-Rogers—actress, director, producer, writer and musician

Theater legend Naty Crame-Rogers is not about to slow down—not when 'whatever you have achieved is inadequate, because you are seeking perfection'

Text and photos by Arnoldo Ma. Geronimo
Contributor

WAY BACK in 1947, a young and newly married Naty Crame-Rogers was sheltering herself from the rains when a stranger materialized from nowhere and asked politely, "May I share your umbrella?"

"It was some other day that the playlight director Wilfredo Ma. Geronimo (now here to be a Pinoy Artist) asked that was the start of her acting career, for Geronimo (occasionally an actor) and her in his play "Percussion."

"Her play recognized the rights of women," Naty recalls. "It was a breakthrough in the history of Philippine theater. I want to be in it."

The appropriate time to do so would be in March, Women's Month.

'Camp Rock: The Musical' is fun, passionate, energetic

By Dave Karger

The latest musicals are phenomenally, it doesn't just have
 But several caveats are in good lucking

IT'S HARD to believe that just 10 years ago, the musical was a niche form of entertainment. Now, it's everywhere. From Broadway to the regional theaters, from the big screen to the small screen, the musical is thriving. And it's not just the big names like "The Book of Mormon" and "Hamilton" that are making headlines. There are a lot of smaller, more intimate musicals that are also doing well. One of the most recent examples is "Camp Rock: The Musical," which is currently playing on Broadway.

"Camp Rock: The Musical" is a story about a group of teenagers who are brought together at a summer camp. The camp is run by a strict, no-nonsense principal, but the teenagers are all talented musicians. They decide to start a band, and they are given the opportunity to perform on the camp's stage. The musical is a fun, energetic, and passionate story that is sure to appeal to a wide audience.

One of the things that makes "Camp Rock: The Musical" so appealing is the way it combines music and theater. The songs are catchy and easy to remember, and the choreography is energetic and fun. The story is also relatable, as it deals with themes of friendship, love, and the pursuit of dreams.

Good-looking 'Gwapoman'

Aaron Felizmenio's creation is an unusual, ironic hero, and Felizmenio's formidable talent transforms the first Gwapoman collected edition into an inspired product

By Rod S. De Vera

THIS is the new golden age of Filipino comics. Two produced releases clearly ready to break out and conquer a new worldwide market. Unleashed at October's 2012 London, Aaron Felizmenio's graphic novel "Gwapoman 2000 Book 1: Ang Huling Bander" (Francis Lane 10 Illustration Firm, Manila, 2012, 132 pages) is proof positive that the writer/artist is a starburst in the local comics scene. Here's why:

"Ang Huling Bander" reflects the first use of the three colored lines of Felizmenio's independently published limited series that ran from 2008 to 2012, boosted by the final, fourth issue, two gilestones and an epilogue. The character made appearances in the "Bayan Buhay" film, but Felizmenio's story here really gets to work his style in the comic scene and, by extension, in the graphic novel.

The book doesn't shirk its use much on Gwapoman's fatherly past. It's not that he has found himself in politics with the same kind of graphic novel "Ang Huling Bander," as you can see from the title, to do

The story is fairly complicated, with portions of it existing into world in different times. Felizmenio's artwork plot demands one use serious attention as you may have to read parts "Ang Huling Bander," as you can see from the title, to do most rudimentary tell in down Filipino, and the compelling plot points in some parts here seem to be its edge. Gwapoman's narrative and Alan's character make for both incredibly deep and humorous reading, respectively.

Since the original series was published over a four-year period, Felizmenio's skill has also evolved a lot over that time. The writer/artist of "Gwapoman 2000" here is making another critical quality but the plot is becoming increasingly more the last time, becoming steadily and more atmospheric with a more in-depth feel. The artistic quality is reflected in the selected editor's limited cover, also by Felizmenio.

All in all, this makes "Gwapoman 2000 Book 1: Ang Huling Bander" a solid package showcasing the emerging, remarkable talent of Aaron Felizmenio, who has now turned an into willing releases of releases, to be clear, but he would love to see where it happens after in the coming days/weeks which make the book, he's made to believe, Gwapoman, then, get back to work.

Aaron Felizmenio's "Gwapoman 2000 Book 1: Ang Huling Bander" is available in paperback from Graphic Delivery Station and David's Book at the East edge.

Ermenegildo Zegna

Sartorial style by Ermenegildo Zegna

Established in 1910 by its eponymous founder in the pastoral hills of Trivero, Italy, Ermenegildo Zegna began as a wool mill that gained renown for its high quality woolen suits. Within four generations, the family-owned company has grown and expanded to become the most respected arbiter of sartorial style for men around the globe. Favored for its noble fabrics, superior tailoring, and distinctive detail, the Ermenegildo Zegna brand has diversified into premium collections of apparel, accessories, footwear, and fragrances for men.

Visit the newly opened Ermenegildo Zegna stores at Greenbelt 4 and Newport Mall, Resorts World Manila. Stone Specialists, Inc. is the Philippine partner of Ermenegildo Zegna.
